

16. New MI, Seaman MP, Peterson RE: A method for the simultaneous determination of the secretion rates of cortisol, 11-desoxycortisol, corticosterone, 11-desoxy corticosterone and (eds), VI Reunion Nacional de Endocrinologia Pediatrica, November 2-3, 1984, Puerto de la Cruz, Tenerife, 1984, pp 123-188.

281. New MI: Hypertension, its treatment, and involvement of endocrine glands. In: L Cavallo, G

292. Monder C, Shackleton CHL, Bradlow HL, New MI, Stoner E, Iohan F, Lakshmi V: The syndrome of apparent mineralocorticoid excess: its association with 11β-dehydrogenase and

304. New MI: Molecular genetics and the characterization of steroid 21-hydroxylase deficiency.

318. Sasano H, White PC, New MI, Sasano N: Immunohistochemistry of cytochrome P-450

LIST OF PUBLICATIONS

404. Johnson V, New MI: If the stimulus to pituitary thyroid-stimulation hormone (TSH) secretion is the lack of circulating free thyroxine, why may a baby with congenital nephrotic syndrome present with a raised TSH on neonatal screening? Pediatr Nephrol 6:458, 1992.

545. Marshall I, Ugrasbul, Manginello F, Wajnrajch MP, Shackleton CHL, New MI, Vogiatzi MV. Congenital hypopituitarism as a cause of undetectable estriol levels in the maternal

603. Nimkarn S, New MI, “Congenital Adrenal Hyperplasia Due to 21-hydroxylase Deficiency; a Paradigm for Prenatal Diagnosis and Treatment.” Wiley-Blackwell (in press)
